

Something Understood

Information about the BBC Radio 4 programme

Introduction

As an educator, the BBC radio programme Something Understood fascinates me. It was broadcast weekly from 1995 for 24 years early on a Sunday morning and again late on Sunday night. Listening to the programme in the dark at the end of the weekend, thinking about my week ahead as a physics teacher, I often thought I perceived a pedagogy. From the soundscape of the half-hour episodes, new understanding emerged in the darkness.

That perceived pedagogy is the subject of my current doctoral research project being conducted at the University of Edinburgh under the supervision of Dr. Mike Lynch and Dr. James Lamb.

These files were created from the BBC archive and other places and are shared here in the public interest, for anyone who might be interested.

Episodes

Something Understood broadcast weekly from 1995 for 24 years (Chisholm 2019) before new production was cut by the BBC. They kept the series running on repeats until Easter 2024 when it was apparently quietly removed¹ from the schedule. At 50 episodes a year, that might make for a catalogue of up to 1,200 programmes but I have only identified 750 so far (BBC, n.d.-a, n.d.-b; LOFTUS 2007).

Acquiring a list of episodes

A list of episodes of Something Understood was obtained from the BBC's Something Understood website (BBC, n.d.-b). A database was constructed using a simple `csv` (comma-separated variable) text-based format which includes episode information and the BBC's unique programme identifier² or PID. 646 episodes broadcast since February 2007 are listed and have their own page and PID. A column is derived in the dataset to provide a hyperlink to these programme websites. Links to BBC archive pages for episodes broadcast between 2 October 2005 and 29 March 2009 (BBC, n.d.-c) are generated and displayed with (alt.). Data captured from these pages is in the Archive-details column: it comprises more running order than a description of the programme.

Earlier programmes were located in the BBC's Genome project site (BBC, n.d.-a) and LOFTUS (2007).

Cataloguing and describing episodes

Broadcast and production information, along with episode descriptions has been obtained between July and October 2021 for all of the 646 known episodes on the BBC Programme website (BBC, n.d.-b). This process of cataloguing includes cleaning of the data on import escaping text where appropriate. This information has been cross-checked with the BBC's Genome Project (BBC, n.d.-a) and the Something Understood Archive pages (BBC, n.d.-c). 750 episodes have been identified so far but the exercise is not yet complete (and may never be, I am doing other things at present).

It is possible that there are discrepancies between the production company records and the BBC's index (BBC, n.d.-a) but the latter is scraped from OCR³d paper copies of The Radio Times with crowd-sourced corrections and additions, as well as more recent programme schedule information. Some manual correction of OCR scanning errors is required, mostly to spelling of names or obvious errors like "I caught a Rsh".

¹It is possibly significant that the last episode broadcast was a repeat of the last original episode made, with Sir Mark Tully himself "striking a valedictory note" with In My End Is My Beginning.

²With the at least one of the repeats being aired in 2023-4, I noticed (in December 2023) that a new PID has been allocated, for which I have created a duplication in the database. I have kept these distinct for now, because in these cases, the BBC are maintaining separate episode pages, for example, Stories of the Nativity has b00wnrw8 and m001v7kd. These are the same episode, as far as I can tell.

Tasks still to do

Completing the cataloguing of Something Understood has had to take a place on a “back burner” while I focus on my main research, but I may have time after that. Please let me know if you want to help!

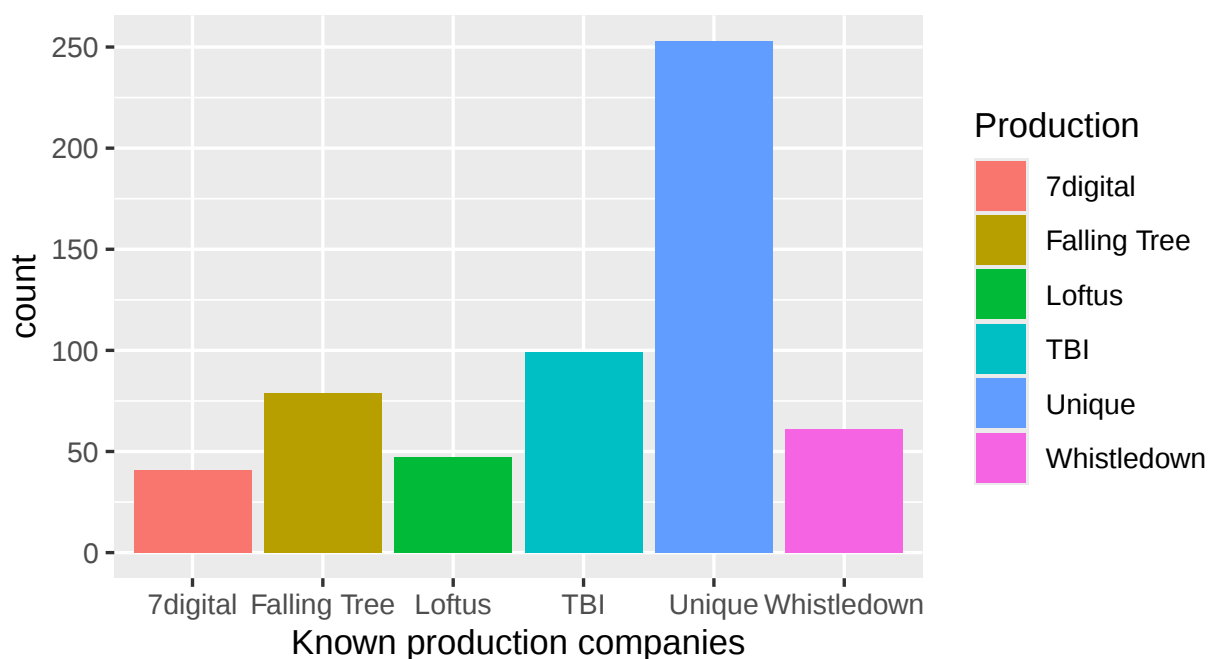

- ☐ Complete mining of the BBC Genome Project for data on Something Understood (1997 ff.).
- ☐ Mine the BBC Something Understood Archive site

Production

After what appears to be a short pilot sequence, the series was originated by Unique, the Production Company (LOFTUS 2007). It began with daily weekday broadcasts (BBC, n.d.-a) for the first six weeks before becoming a weekly broadcast in April 1995 with a new presenter, Mark Tully, in which “Through music, verse, prose and conversation, he probes questions he believes lie at the heart of our humanity.” (BBC, n.d.-a, 2)

Unique productions was a division of UBC Media, in 2014 becoming 7digital in a merger (UBC Media 2014). Under these two production names, there are 294 episodes.

These graphics show the share of episodes and distribution over time of each of the production companies.

It is interesting to notice, in cataloguing the episodes, that readers of one episode sometimes become presenters of another (e.g. Adjoa Andoh in Changing the Mirror); presenters and producers appear as readers (e.g. John McAndrew and Frank Stirling in Translation) or composers (e.g. Michael Zev Gordon in Impermanence). There are a number of episodes on the BBC website that state the production company without naming a producer, although a producer is listed with the readers (e.g. Frank Stirling in the Unique production The Pearl of Great Price).

Occasional special editions of the programme deviate from the usual approach but follow the familiar format. For example, in A Language That Speaks The Truth, the words of broadcaster Studs Terkel speaking shortly before his death are connected with readings and music known to have been valued by him. In this example, two experienced producers, Eleanor McDowall & Alan Hall created the programme.

The Presenters

Sir Mark Tully was the regular presenter of the programme until production was ended in 2019 but there have been other presenters who have contributed a dozen or more episodes over the years.

Sir Mark Tully

i Mark Tully 24th October 1935 – 25th January 2026

It was with great sadness that we learned of the death of Sir Mark Tully, who presented many of the episodes of Something Understood from 1995 until production was cut in 2019. His vision of probing questions at the heart of our humanity through music, verse, prose and conversation, has brought much comfort and inspiration to so many of us. We grieve the loss of a man of great intellect and principle.

After the death of Mark Tully in January 2026, people were prompted to write to me, about him and about Something Understood. He, of course, was so much more than a presenter of a much-loved radio programme. His love of India and the people of India was seen for decades through his work as the BBC's bureau chief in the country. His style was stress-free, dispassionate, but not without the ability to stir the passions of those who listened to him. One writer said this:

"Mark Tully (similar to the late John Peel) was one of those rare broadcasters whom you (when you listened to his words) felt he was actually speaking to you personally in your room. His journalistic style was conversational."

As a producer and presenter of audio in my own research, I value the exemplars of good broadcasting and journalism of such people as these. Mark Tully's Wikipedia biography is worth reading for an insight into his character. He stood up to bullies and had the courage to go freelance when these were the right thing to do. His respect for others is captured very well in the words of a recent correspondent:

"The best tribute I can make and send to Mark Tully today is: 'I never ever heard you deride or undermine any religion or faith group, you truly welcomed the Samaritan in the true sense. May God rest you!'"

Something Understood episodes

Following the spike in interest in Mark Tully and Something Understood following the news of his death, there have been suggestions that past episodes should be made available for people to appreciate. One correspondent wrote:

"the apparent almost total unavailability of the programmes to listen to, on BBC Sounds or otherwise, reveals a huge gap."

I agree that the loss of the programme from production was ill-considered against the otherwise excellent broadcasting of the BBC. The continued airing episodes from the back catalogue was fairly short-lived, and I can only assume the removal of the back catalogue from BBC Sounds is due to rights considerations, or some other lawyer-poisoned thinking.

It has been suggested that a podcast could be made from the programmes downloaded by various means by members of the public. I have retained for personal listening pleasure over 300 episodes myself, roughly half of the output catalogued here. What I don't have is a ton of cash to defend myself against the aforementioned lawyers should they come to my door.

Having created and recorded for research my own Something Understood inspired programmes of music, verse, prose and conversation, I recognise the difficulty with broadcasting and publishing when the work of others is used in the production. I respect the rights of creators and artists to license their work properly, and to earn what they can for their efforts. What I hope is that the BBC might see their way to making publicly available once more, some of the back catalogue of Something Understood, which remains an outstanding example of great programming, and which has been a source of great comfort and inspiration to so many.

Episodes list

I have catalogued 750 episodes so far and acquired 310 as sound files.
